

Table of Contents

Declaration	ii
Supervisor’s Certificate	iii
Acknowledgements	iv
Abstract	vii
Preface	1
Chapter One
Racial Encounters and Concerns in Eugene O’Neill’s Plays	12
Chapter Two
Staging Ethnic Taxonomies: The Politics of Exclusion in Thirst and The Dreamy Kid	50
“Melting-Pot” Issue: O’Neill in Stage-Center	51
Clustered Experience Reenacted as Ideas	54
Racism in Politics, National Psyche	59
Thirst as Lens: Racism in Public Domains	62
Regression for Accursed Humankind	72
Racial Division as Symbolic of “Failed” Humanity	73
Promoting “Darker Brother”: Black-Irish Synthesis	80
“Nigger” on the Run: The Dream Differed	85
Militant Intent: “If We Must Die”	91
The Birth of “Authentic Negro” Tragedy	95
Chapter Three
Internalizing Racist Ideology: The Emperor Jones	108
Ethnic Budge in The Emperor Jones : “Money is Life”	110
Genesis of Jones and Kleptocracy	118
The Trajectory of African and Irish American Diaspora	124
Shifted Perspective: White Imprints on Jones	127
White Jockey Jockey-Strapped	135
Jones and the American Sin of Desire	142
O’Neill’s Kaleidoscopic View of Racism	147
Chapter Four
Racialized Demarcation of Desire and Traumatized Humanity: All God’s Chillun Got Wings	152

Anathema of Miscegenation and the American Backdrop	154
Autobiographical and Historical Implications	162
Innocence Marred by Experience: Color-Struck Ghetto and Church	171
Cultures at War: Buying “the Whitest,” Checking the “Nigger”	188
Whiteness Eroding Black Identity: “Nigger, is you a nigger?”	203
The Return to Innocence	210
Love in the Time of KKK	215
O’Neill’s Clarion Call for Racial Equity	220
Chapter Five
Identity, Recognition, and the Paradigm of Inclusion: The Iceman Cometh	225
Life Changed into Landscape	227
Hickey: The Cultural Archetype of American Salesman	236
Joe Mott: Answer to O’Neill’s Personal and Political Equations	244
Life of Pipedream, Living in Equality	249
“Always Be Closing”: Bigotry’s Stepping In	258
Evolved and Equated “Darker Brother” in Stage-Center	263
Continued Quest for Racial Equity and Brotherhood	271
Chapter Six
(Post)Colonial Scars: The Unfinished Cycle	280
The Unknown O’Neill: Ideas for Black Plays	282
“Honest Honey Boy”: Homage to Black Memory	284
“Bantu Boy”: The Projection of “Original Sin”	294
“Runaway Slave”: Getting Further to the Bottom	305
Saying What Happened: Intended Slave-Narratives	311
O’Neill—A Campaigner of Racial Equity	314
Afterword	315
Works Cited	320
About the Author	end page